VOLUNTEERS

International Relief Teams Seeks Skilled Construction Volunteers

International Relief Teams (IRT) is seeking volunteers with construction skills (handypersons or licensed contractors) for one week deployments to U.S. flood affected areas to help those families who cannot financially recover on their own, get back into their homes. Our construction teams are currently working in Louisiana in the aftermath of last year's record floods, and anticipate we will be needed in Texas in the near future.

Although skilled construction volunteers are our first priority, we will be adding a limited number of unskilled volunteers to each team. All volunteers accepted for this assignment will be flown commercially from an airport near their home to an airport near the job site, leaving on a Sunday and returning the following Sunday. IRT will provide minivans for volunteers to use to for local transportation to and from the arrival airport and to and from the job site.

Teams will be housed at local churches or other suitable facilities. Volunteers are responsible for bringing their own bedding, towels, and toiletries. There is a $150 volunteer participation fee to help cover airfare and local transportation costs, and volunteers are responsible for their own meals while on assignment.

Work is performed Monday through Friday (full days) and a half day on Saturday. Job assignments generally include installing windows, doors, kitchen cabinets; laying tile, linoleum, or wood flooring; building handicap ramps to the home; roofing; drywall and mudding; finish carpentry work, finishing plumbing; and other related tasks. We ask each volunteer to bring basic hand tools, such as a tool belt, hammer, pliers, putty knives, tape measure, etc. Power tools, generators, compressors, and other large specialty tools are provided by IRT and our local agency partners.

For more information, contact Brett Schwemmer (bschwemmer@irteams.org), or to apply for an assignment, fill out an online volunteer application (www.irteams.org).

About IRT: Since 1988, IRT has been actively involved in helping families in need in 68 international disasters, and 24 U.S. disasters. IRT construction teams worked for more than six years repairing and rebuilding homes in Mississippi after Hurricane Katrina, and four years in New Jersey after Superstorm Sandy, and is now working in Louisiana after last year's record floods.
